

Okehocking Nature Center

Okehocking Preserve is a 180-acre preserve providing passive recreation and over 5 miles of mown and wooded trails.

The Willistown Conservation Trust partnered with the township on the acquisition of a portion of this property. The Township hired the design team to develop a plan that included shelter, restrooms, running water, parking, and improved access. The final plan calls for 47 parking spaces on porous pavement - a mixture of porous asphalt and grass pave, bus access for camp and school groups, a three season pavilion, and an accessible walk through a landscape that educates visitors by demonstrating ways in which they can transform their suburban homes and offices into rich ecosystems that heal and restore our native landscapes.

Location: Willistown, Pennsylvania
Client: Willistown Township
Size: 5.5 acres
Cost: $1 million sitework, $600,000 pavilion
